ON THE COUCH: Twenty Extraordinary Personalities, from Picasso to Putin

Andrew Jamieson

In this groundbreaking new book, psychoanalyst Andrew Jamieson considers ten key principles that stand as central pillars within psychoanalysis and illuminates them through psychobiographies of twenty extraordinary people.

From Pablo Picasso's chaotic life, which illustrates Freud's concept of the unconscious, to Nelson Mandela's inspired achievements, which exemplify Jung's idea of Individuation; from John Bowlby's attachment theory as seen through the lives of Virginia Woolf and Franz Kafka to Melanie Klein's views on the close relationship between love and hate as these ideas are revealed through Cary Grant, Jamieson removes psychoanalysis from its theoretical framework and explores these great lives in new ways.

Andrew Jamieson lectures and writes articles on subjects including psychotherapy's interconnection with philosophy, music and literature. His most recent book is Midlife: Humanity's Secret Weapon. Parallel to his psychotherapeutic career, he has promoted orchestral concerts throughout the UK for over forty years.

MUSIC LESSONS: Seven Composers and What They Taught Me

Stephen Johnson

For Stephen Johnson, there have been key points in his life when music that is considered 'dark' has confronted him with life-changing insights. Some of these insights have been hard to accept, but once accepted, all have opened up new possibilities of thinking, feeling and living. Through an exploration of seven pieces, including Anton Bruckner's 'Symphony No 8', Lili Boulanger's Du fond de l'abîme (Psalm 130), Jean Sibelius's 'Symphony No 5' and David Bowie's 'I Can't Give Everything Away', Johnson explores the lives and the intentions of the composers who created them, and how they have affected him personally.

Stephen Johnson is the author of How Shostakovich Changed My Mind, also published by Notting Hill Editions, and The Eighth: Mahler and the World in 1910, and is the editor of The Wrong Turning: Encounters with Ghosts. He has taken part in hundreds of radio programmes and documentaries, and has appeared on numerous TV programmes, including The South Bank Show and The One Show.

EVERYDAY TANG: On What We Can Learn From a Dynasty

Xiaolu Guo

Part travelogue, part historical reflection, Everyday Tang is a profound, and often startling, meditation on one period in Chinese history: the magnificent and cosmopolitan Tang Dynasty (618–907).

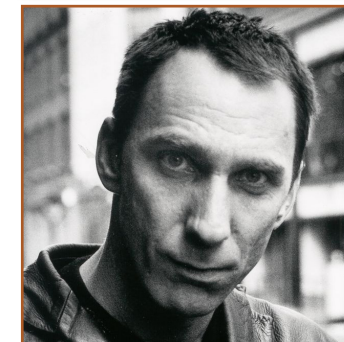

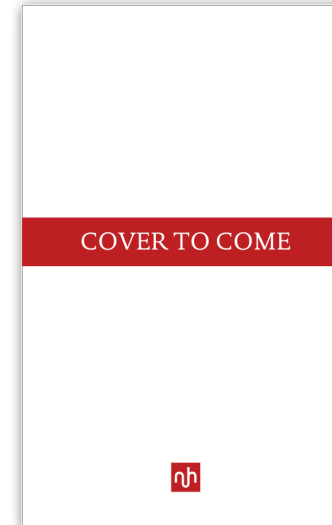

In the summer of 2024, Xiaolu Guo travelled from England to China with her eleven-year-old in search of what remains of the ancient past. As they wander through the great cities of Xi'an and Luoyang, and cross rivers such as the Wei and the Yangzi, Xiaolu ponders the achievements of the Tang in science, arts, trade, spirituality, sexuality and women's freedom which sheds new light on our understanding of the Tang Dynasty.

Xiaolu Guo is a novelist, memoirist and cineaste. Her novels include A Concise Chinese-English Dictionary for Lovers, I Am China and A Lover's Discourse, which was shortlisted for the Goldsmiths Prize 2020. Named as one of Granta's Best of Young British Novelists in 2013, she has also directed a dozen award winning films, including How Is Your Fish Today (Sundance Official Selection).

ET IN SUBURBIA EGO Will Self

© Don McCullin

Facing a bone marrow transplant for blood cancer, a procedure with a one in five chance of proving fatal – while the alternative was simply to die – Will Self, the preeminent English psychogeographer of our era, set out to walk the streets of London, his native city. Battling with his symptoms, he assigned himself a task as obdurate as it was obtuse: to promenade almost exclusively within the London suburbs built in the interwar period; that great sprawl of suburbia, that, like some twee Tudorbethan tree ring, defines the metropolis's bizarre dendrochronology. By confining himself to the city of that era, Self's intention was to psychically apprehend the very material reality of his own being. Having grown up in the Hampstead Garden Suburb, itself an idealised vision of a timeless English neverland built in the 1920s and 30s, and as the son of a theorist of town planning, Self's divagating circumambulation, would, he hoped, make it possible for him to finally grasp all that privet, paving, and fake-gabbling, so as to say with conviction: 'This is this', even as his body was telling him: Et in Suburbia Ego.

Will Self is a writer; he lives in London.

THE INDIGO HOURS: Writers Walk the Night

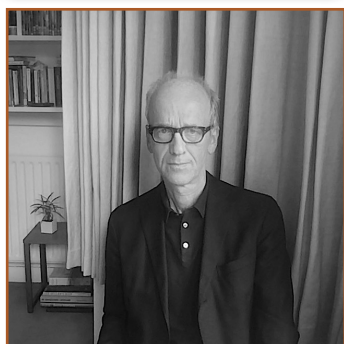

Introduced and Edited by Duncan Minshull

'There is something otherworldly about nightwalking. Something that makes you see the world differently.'
Shane O'Mara

O'Mara's is a recent response to walking the dark, which means anytime between the hours of dusk and approaching dawn; be it rural or urban, or places elsewhere. But it's a sentiment that stretches right back in time, as readers will discover in the pages of The Indigo Hours where voices celebratory and cautionary say the same. Fifty-plus voices collected from memoirs and journals, letters and travelogues, from Jean Paul, Leigh Hunt and Thomas De Quincey to a host of contemporary writers including Mary Morris, Colm Tóibín and Joanna Kavenna.

Duncan Minshull is a freelance audio producer and anthologist, and formerly a senior producer at BBC Radio. His previous books include Beneath My Feet, Sauntering and Globetrotting. He has written about the joys of walking for The Times, the Financial Times, the Daily Telegraph, the Guardian, Condé Nast Traveller, Slightly Foxed, Psychologies and Vogue.

THE THRESHOLD AND THE LEDGER

Tom McCarthy

Ingeborg Bachmann (1926–1973) may have spent her career in the shadow of her lover Paul Celan; but since her untimely death her star has outshone even his. In recent years more and more Anglophone writers and readers have been switching on to her importance.

Published just before the centenary year of one of the German-speaking world's most extraordinary post-war writers, Tom McCarthy's short book unpacks a single poem by Bachmann. Latching onto two of its central terms – the eponymous threshold and ledger – McCarthy takes off on a line of flight that carries the reader through the work of Franz Kafka, David Lynch, Anne Carson, Sappho and Shakespeare.

Tom McCarthy is a novelist whose work has been translated into more than twenty languages and adapted for cinema, theatre and radio. He won the inaugural Windham-Campbell Prize for Fiction, and two of his novels were Booker Prize finalists. He has held Visiting Professorships at the Royal College of Art London, Columbia University New York and Städtelschule Frankfurt. He lives in Berlin.

THE LAKE POETS: An Anthology

The Lake Poets

Introduced by James Rebanks

Inspired by the spectacular pastoral landscapes of the region, William Wordsworth, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Robert Southey, Dorothy Wordsworth, Charles Lamb, Hartley Coleridge and Thomas De Quincey are best remembered for their incredible depictions of the English fells, lakes and coastlines, which continue to inspire visitors from around the world. In this beautiful anthology of their selected writings, we are reminded of the lasting influence that this exquisite place has on this famous group of writers.

James Rebanks is a farmer based in the Lake District, where his family have lived and worked for over six hundred years. His No.1 bestselling debut, The Shepherd's Life, won the Lake District Book of the Year, was shortlisted for the Wainwright and Ondaatje prizes, and has been translated into sixteen languages. His second book, English Pastoral, was also a Top Ten bestseller and was named the Sunday Times Nature Book of the Year. Heralded as a 'master-piece' by the New Statesman, it was shortlisted for the Ondaatje prize, and longlisted for the Rathbones Folio prize and the Orwell Prize for Political Writing.

BLIND CORNERS: Essays on Photography

Michael Collins

Introduced by Will Self

For many years, photographer Michael Collins had wondered what exactly it was that he found so mysterious about photography. In this series of linked pieces, Collins offers a reappraisal of humble – and often ubiquitous – photographic genres that he believes are worthy of greater understanding. From restoring abandoned photos, whose subjects are lost to time, to a quotidian history of the studio portrait; from tracing the origins of the panorama within the wider field of the history of art to an experiment in photographic portraiture using gorillas, Collins reveals what it is about photography that continues to fascinate us.

Michael Collins was the first contemporary art photographer to be exhibited at The British Museum. The recipient of numerous Arts Council England grants, his work is in many British and overseas collections including the V&A, The British Library, and other private collections. His most recent book of photography is The Nuclear Sublime.

Will Self is a writer, he lives in London.

OUTRAGE

Ian Nairn

Introduced by Travis Elborough

In 1955, Britain's most prestigious architectural magazine, The Architectural Review, published a special issue featuring a single essay by Ian Nairn, a famously opinionated (and untrained) architectural critic. Based on observations made on a journey Nairn took across the UK in a Morris Minor, Outrage is a searing critique of urban sprawl, or 'Subtopia'. In this manifesto, Nairn warns that 'if what is called development is allowed to multiply at the present rate', Britain's natural – and urban – landscapes will lose their individuality and spirit. A call-to-arms against the 'greying out' of our towns and countryside before it's too late, Outrage is widely considered to be Nairn's masterpiece.

Ian Nairn (1930–1983) was a British architectural critic and topographer.

Travis Elborough is the author of many books, including Wish You Were Here: England on Sea and Atlas of Vanishing Places, and winner of the Edward Stanford Travel Book Award in 2020.

LEWIS CARROLL'S GUIDE FOR INSOMNIACS

Lewis Carroll

Introduced by Gyles Brandreth

'The dilemma my friends suppose me to be in,' writes the author of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, 'has, for its two horns, the endurance of a sleepless night, and the adoption of some recipe for inducing sleep.' In this delightful book – the perfect gift for all insomniacs – are collected a splendid variety of puzzles, rhymes, limericks and calming calculations guaranteed to keep you entertained as you search for the elusive rabbit-hole of a good night's sleep.

Lewis Carroll (1832–1898), whose real name was Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, was an English author, poet, mathematician, illustrator, photographer, inventor and insomniac. Most famous for writing Alice's Adventures in Wonderland (1865), he was also noted for his love of puzzles and wordplay.

Gyles Brandreth is a writer, broadcaster, performer and former MP who has been a devotee of Lewis Carroll since the age of seven. In 2023, with descendants of the Dodgson family, he unveiled a plaque at Folly Bridge in Oxford commemorating the 1862 boat trip when the story of Alice's adventures was first told.

WHAT WE TALK ABOUT WHEN WE TALK ABOUT CRIME

Jennifer Fleetwood

Over the past few decades, there has been a remarkable rise in the number of people who speak publicly about their experience of crime: bookshops heave with autobiographies by prisoners; Netflix and YouTube host interviews with serial killers and true-crime podcasts like Criminal often feature episodes focusing entirely on one person's narrative.

In this fascinating new book, British criminologist Jennifer Fleetwood examines a number of well-known 'crimes' which are known to us via a public, first-person account to try to make sense of the social, political and cultural consequences that this confessional impulse has on our lives. From Prince Andrew's disastrous Newsnight interview to the backlash that resulted from 'ISIS bride' Shamima Begum's 2019 testimony in The Times, Fleetwood shows us what really happens when we tell stories about crime and who benefits from all this storytelling.

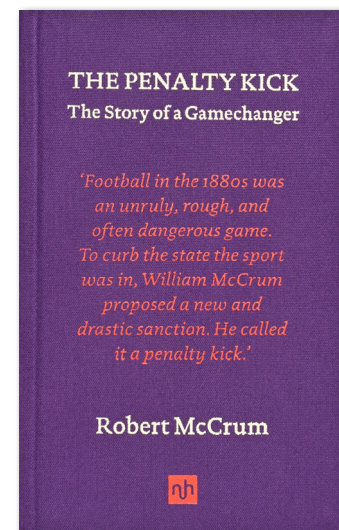

Jennifer Fleetwood is a Senior Lecturer in Criminology at the University of Goldsmiths, London.

THE PENALTY KICK: The Story of a Gamechanger

Robert McCrum

Football, in the 1880s, was a rough and often dangerous game. As a result William McCrum, the heir to a linen fortune and a keen amateur goalkeeper in Co. Armagh, Northern Ireland, proposed a new and drastic sanction: a penalty kick that would admonish anyone – and their team – for foul play. At first the International Football Board resisted 'the Irishman's Motion' as a restriction that would curb the players' freedom of expression, but the Penalty Kick was adopted in 1891 to almost immediate acclaim among fans and players.

An enthralling portrait of a lost age, The Penalty Kick looks at the history and meaning of an extraordinary phenomenon while examining the Penalty Kick's psychological – even philosophical grip – on our imaginations, with its distillation of risk and chance into an all-or-nothing moment.

Robert McCrum is a writer and editor whose most recent book, Shakespearean, was published to great acclaim in 2021. He was the editor-in-chief of Faber & Faber and literary editor of the Observer.

A STRANGE LIFE: Selected Essays of Louisa May Alcott

Introduced and Edited by Liz Rosenberg

Preface by Jane Smiley

Louisa May Alcott is, of course, best known as the author of Little Women (1868). But she was also a noted essayist who wrote on a wide range of subjects, including her father's failed utopian commune, her experience as a young woman sent to work in service to alleviate her family's poverty and of being an army nurse during the American Civil War. As with her famous novel, Alcott writes these essays with clear observation, unforgettable scenes and one of the sharpest wits in American literature. Published together for the first time, this delightful selection shows us another side to one of our most celebrated writers.

Liz Rosenberg is the author of House of Dreams: A Biography of L. M. Montgomery and Sorrows, Scribbles and Russet Leather Boots: A Biography of Louisa May Alcott. She is a Chancellor Award-winning professor of English at the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Jane Smiley is the author of over twenty novels, including A Thousand Acres, which was awarded the Pulitzer Prize, and the Last Hundred Years Trilogy: Some Luck, Early Warning, and Golden Age.

MODERN BUILDINGS IN LONDON

Ian Nairn

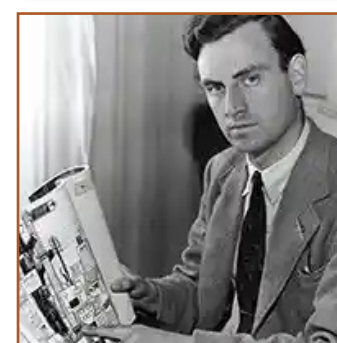

Introduced by Travis Elborough

As one of the few architectural critics to eschew purely aesthetic modes of analysis, Ian Nairn's timeless books on modern urban cities have been hailed as some of the most significant writing about contemporary Britain, while also being praised as alternative 'guidebooks' for curious travellers. First published in 1964, Modern Buildings in London celebrates the character of buildings that were immediately recognisable as 'modern' in 1964, many of which were not the part of the well-known landscape of London but instead were gems that Nairn stumbled across.

Ian Nairn (1930–1983) was a British architectural critic and topographer who coined the term 'subtopia' for the areas around cities that had in his view been failed by urban planning, losing their individuality and spirit of place.

Travis Elborough is the author of many books, including Wish You Were Here: England on Sea and Atlas of Vanishing Places, winner of Edward Stanford Travel Book Award in 2020.

FASHION: A Manifesto

Anouchka Grose

Fashion: A Manifesto takes a look at the psychology of fashion in order to unpick the hold it has on so many of us. On the one hand clothes can help you out with embodied life by concealing the bits you feel ashamed of and accentuating the bits you're proud of. But like gambling, fashion keeps us captivated by treating us badly, trapping us in a cycle of promises and dashed hopes by suggesting that new clothes will help us to like ourselves more. And while it's easy to dismiss fashion as elitist and wasteful, isn't it also fascinating, exciting and perhaps sometimes even radical – not to mention surprisingly egalitarian? Taking us on a journey from the court of Louis XIV to TikTok's avant apocalypse, Fashion: A Manifesto scrutinises fashion to open up questions about the ways in which it works both for and against us.

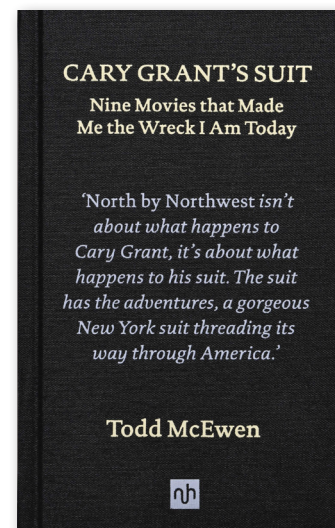

Anouchka Grose is a psychoanalyst and writer and a member of The Centre for Freudian Research, where she regularly lectures. Her non-fiction books include No More Silly Love Songs and A Guide to Eco-Anxiety. She is also extremely fashionable.

CARY GRANT'S SUIT: Nine Movies That Made Me the Wreck I am Today

Todd McEwen

'Todd McEwen not only has a black belt in comedy, he can turn a phrase on two wheels and blow diamond dust out of the exhaust pipe.' Tom Robbins

Todd McEwen grew up in Southern California, so his head was hopelessly messed with by the movies. As the son of relatively NORMAL PEOPLE, Todd had no in with Hollywood, a mere thirteen miles away, yearn and try as he might. This is a kid who loved the movies so much, he got up at 4.30 in the morning to watch Laurel and Hardy. A kid who insisted on his birthday that his father project 8mm cartoons onto the family's dining room curtains so they could be slowly parted, just like at a real cinema. This is a kid who, years later, watched Chinatown over sixty times. A love letter to old Hollywood, this is a book for anyone interested in film.

Todd McEwen's novels include Fisher's Hornpipe, McX: A Romance of the Dour, Who Sleeps with Katz, and The Five Simple Machines.

BRAINSPOTTING: Adventures in Neurology

A. J. Lees

Brainspotting (noun): a powerful, and simultaneous, form of diagnosis and treatment.

As a trainee doctor, Andrew Lees was enthralled by neurologists who combined the precision of mathematicians, the scrupulosity of entomologists and the solemnity of undertakers in their diagnoses and treatments. Today, this kind of 'holistic neurology' is on the brink of extinction. In this brilliant new book, Andrew Lees takes us on a kind of Sherlock Holmes tour of neurology, giving the reader insight into the deep analytical tools that the best neurologists still rely on to diagnose patients: to heal minds and to fix brains.

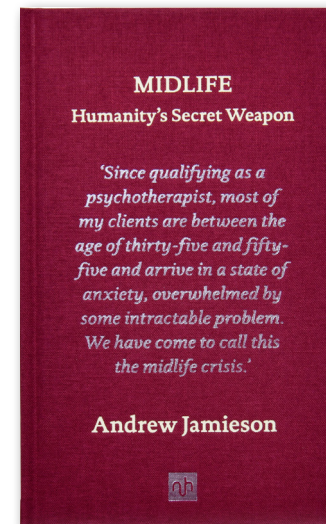

Dr Andrew Lees is a Professor of Neurology at the National Hospital, London. He is one of the three leading Parkinson's disease researchers in the world and is the author of several books, including Ray of Hope, The Silent Plague, Mentored by a Madman and Brazil That Never Was.

MIDLIFE: Humanity's Secret Weapon

Andrew Jamieson

Only two species of mammal have a post-reproductive life that lasts longer than their reproductive life – the killer whale and Homo sapiens – and the evolutionary purpose of our extended years remains a mystery. Psychoanalyst Carl Jung, however, observed that successful cultures find an equilibrium between the energy of those in the ego-driven first half of life and the wisdom of those in the second, but to make it to that second half of life, we need to traverse the dreaded 'middle years'. Drawing on history, psychology, science and literature, Jamieson shows how ubiquitous, how crucial and how misunderstood the 'midlife crisis' is, and the devastating consequences for society at large if we continue to regard it as something we can, and should, avoid.

Andrew Jamieson trained at the Bath Centre for Psychotherapy and Counselling and received an MA in Humanistic and Integrative Psychotherapy at Middlesex University. He lectures and writes widely on a series of subjects, including psychotherapy's interconnection with philosophy, music and literature.

CONFESSIONS OF A HERETIC - Revised Edition

Roger Scruton

Introduced by Douglas Murray

A collection of provocative essays by the philosopher and political thinker Roger Scruton. Each 'confession' reveals aspects of the author's thinking that his critics would have advised him to keep to himself. Scruton challenges popular opinion on key issues: what can we do to protect Western values against Islamic extremism? Why is the Nation State worth preserving? How should we achieve a timely death against the advances of modern medicine?

With a new introduction by bestselling author and commentator Douglas Murray, this selection offers guidance to a new generation of readers.

Roger Scruton (1944–2020) was a philosopher, polemicist, and author of over 40 books, many of which have been translated. He was a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature and in 2016 he was knighted for services to 'philosophy, teaching and public education'.

BRAZIL THAT NEVER WAS

A.J. Lees

When the eminent neurologist Andrew Lees was a boy, he came across a tattered copy of Exploration Fawcett. It told the true story of Colonel Fawcett, a British explorer who in 1925 had gone in search of a lost city in the Amazon, and never returned. The riveting tale of Fawcett's encounters with deadly animals and hostile tribes and the many who lost their own lives when they went in search of him, inspired the young Lees to believe that there were still earthly places where one could 'fall off the edge'.

Years later, Lees set off in search of the mysterious figure of Fawcett. What he found exceeded his wildest imaginings. Part travelogue, part memoir, Lees portrays an elusive Brazil, and a flawed explorer whose doomed mission ruined lives.

Dr Andrew Lees is the recipient of numerous awards, and is the author of several critically acclaimed books including the NHE bestselling Mentored by a Madman: The William Burroughs Experiment.

HAPPY HALF HOURS: Selected Writings of A.A. Milne

Introduced by Frank Cottrell Boyce

Categories: Literature / Humour
Publication date: October 20, 2020
Pages: 180
ISBN Hardback: 9781912559053

A delightful selection of articles by the ever-popular A.A. Milne, best known as the author of the classic Winnie-the-Pooh stories.

A.A. Milne had a talent for regularly turning out a thousand whimsical words on lost hats and umbrellas, tennis, dogs, dotty maids, the English obsession with rank and titles, cheap cigars, and any amount of life's other little difficulties.

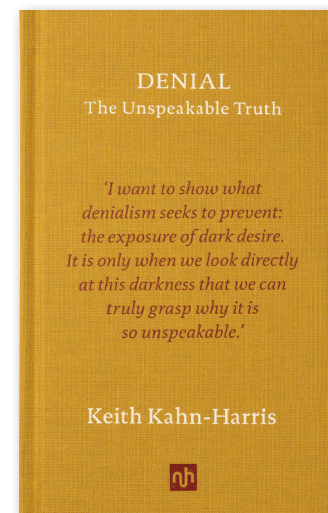

This selection of Milne's articles, spanning over four decades of his life from 1910 to 1952, are collected for the first time in this volume, including his passionately argued writings on pacifism.

Frank Cottrell Boyce is a children's novelist who won the Carnegie Medal for Millions in 2004 and the Guardian Children's Fiction Prize for The Unforgotten Coat in 2013. Millions was made into a film by Danny Boyle. His other books include Framed, Cosmic, and The Astounding Broccoli Boy. Cottrell Boyce's films include Goodbye Christopher Robin (2017), about the lives of A.A. Milne and his family.

DENIAL: The Unspeakable Truth

Keith Kahn-Harris

Categories: Sociology / Politics
Publication date: September 13, 2018
Pages: 200
ISBN Hardback: 9781910749968

Denialism comes in many forms, often dressed in the garb of scholarship or research. It's certainly insidious and pernicious, but what if, as Keith Kahn-Harris asks, it actually cloaks much darker, unspeakable, desires? If denialists could speak from the heart, what would we hear?

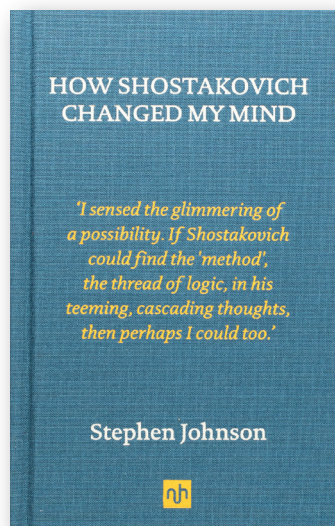

Kahn-Harris sets out not to unpick denialists' arguments, but to investigate what lies behind them. The conclusions he reaches are shocking and uncomfortable. In a world of 'fake news' and 'post-truth', are the denialists about to secure victory?

Dr Kahn-Harris has researched and published widely on heavy metal music and culture, and the British Jewish community. He also writes about politics, society and culture. A sociologist by training, Kahn-Harris lectures at Leo Baeck and Birkbeck Colleges. He runs the European Jewish Research Archive at the Institute for Jewish Policy Research.

HOW SHOSTAKOVICH CHANGED MY MIND

Stephen Johnson

BBC music broadcaster Stephen Johnson explores the power of Shostakovich's music during Stalin's reign of terror, and writes of the extraordinary healing effect of music on sufferers of mental illness. Johnson looks at neurological, psychotherapeutic and philosophical findings, and reflects on his own experience, where he believes Shostakovich's music helped him survive the trials and assaults of bipolar disorder.

Johnson draws on interviews with the members of the orchestra who performed Shostakovich's Leningrad Symphony at the time of the siege of Leningrad, during which almost a third of the population starved to death. In the end, this book is a reaffirmation of a kind of humanist miracle: that hope could be reborn in a time when, to quote the writer Nadezhda Mandelstam, there was only 'Hope against Hope'.

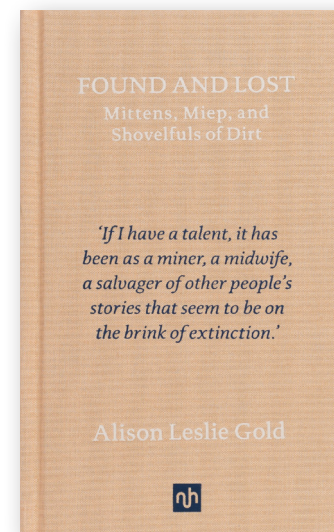

Stephen Johnson is an award-winning broadcaster, composer and writer.

FOUND AND LOST: Mittens, Miep, and Shovelfuls of Dirt

Alison Leslie Gold

A luminous memoir from the Holocaust writer Alison Leslie Gold, told through a series of letters to the living and the dead. Starting with her childhood experience of running her primary school 'Lost and Found' depot, Gold charts the origin of her need to save objects, stories, people – including herself – whom she has sensed to be on a road to perdition. The letters tell of her early activism; her descent into alcoholism and her subsequent recovery. Found and Lost is both a tender memorial to the extraordinary people in her life, and a compelling tale of redemption.

Alison Leslie Gold's works include Anne Frank Remembered, written with Miep Gies, Memories of Anne Frank: Reflections of a Childhood Friend, A Special Fate and Fiet's Vase and Other Stories of Survival. Her non-fiction work has received numerous tributes including a Best of the Best Award, a Notable Book for a Global Society Award and a Christopher Award.

MENTORED BY A MADMAN: The William Burroughs Experiment

A.J. Lees

In this extraordinary memoir, neuroscientist Andrew Lees explains how William Burroughs, author of Naked Lunch and troubled drug addict, played an unlikely part in his medical career.

Lees draws on Burroughs' search for an addiction cure to discover a ground-breaking treatment for shaking palsy, and learns how to use the deductive reasoning of Sherlock Holmes to diagnose patients. Lees follows Burroughs into the rainforest and under the influence of yagé (ayahuasca) gains insights that encourage him to pursue new lines of pharmacological research and explore new forms of science.

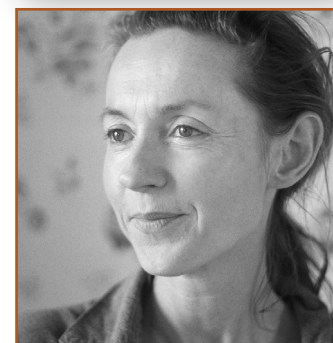

Dr Andrew Lees is a Professor of Neurology at the National Hospital, London. He is the recipient of numerous awards and is one of the three most highly cited Parkinson's disease researchers in the world. Professor Lees is the author of several books.

MY KATHERINE MANSFIELD PROJECT

Kirsty Gunn

When Kirsty Gunn received a Randell Fellowship in 2009 she returned to spend the winter in Thornden, New Zealand, near the childhood home of Katherine Mansfield, the writer to whom she'd always felt most connected. She explores her own deep connection to a place of memories, and reflects on what it means to 'come home'.

'A beautiful and mood-provoking book...the writing went into my consciousness and I felt the loneliness, the sadness, the love and identification with Katherine Mansfield. . It was beautiful.' Jane Campion

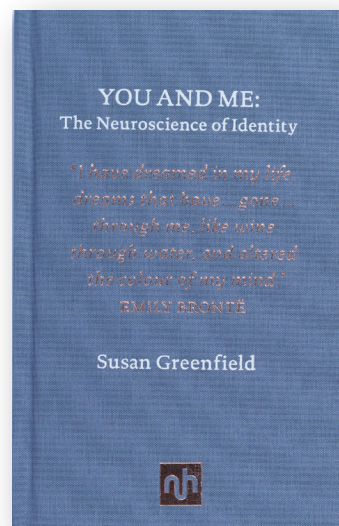

Kirsty Gunn is the recipient of several awards and prizes including the New York Times Notable Book Award, and the James Tait Black Memorial Prize. She is Professor of Writing Practice and Study at The University of Dundee.

YOU AND ME: The Neuroscience of Identity

Susan Greenfield

A fascinating look at the relationship between identity and neuroscience in the age of social media. Greenfield looks at the ways in which technology impacts our brains and sense of identity.

Baroness Susan Greenfield CBE is a British scientist, writer, broadcaster and member of the House of Lords. Specialising in the physiology of the brain, Greenfield researches the impact of 21st century technologies on the mind, how the brain generates consciousness and novel approaches to neurodegenerative diseases such as Alzheimer's and Parkinson's. Greenfield has written a range of books on issues relating to the mind and brain for the general reader.

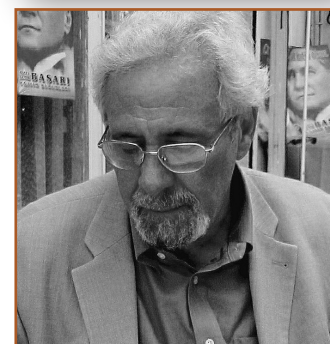

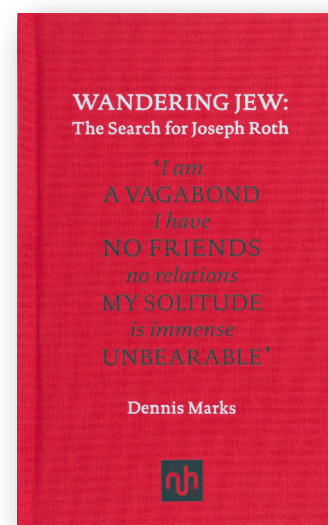

'Asks good questions, describes intriguing facts and makes some interesting suggestions.' Financial Times

WANDERING JEW: The Search for Joseph Roth

Dennis Marks

In this revealing 'psycho-geography', Dennis Marks makes a journey through the eastern borderlands of Europe to learn about the elusive writer Joseph Roth and the world in which he lived. The result is a riveting and involving documentary that reunites Roth with his creative landscape.

Joseph Roth, best-known as the author of the novel The Radetsky March and the non-fiction work, The Wandering Jews, was one of the most seductive, disturbing and enigmatic writers of the twentieth century. Born in 1894 in the Habsburg Empire in what is now Ukraine, and dying in Paris in 1939, he was a perpetual displaced person, a traveller, a prophet, a compulsive liar, and a man who covered his tracks. Through the Eastern borderlands of Europe, Dennis Marks explores the spiritual geography of a still neglected master and uncovers the truth about Roth's lost world.

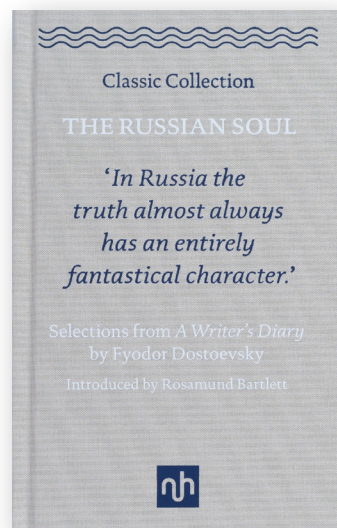

Dennis Marks was an acclaimed television producer and broadcast executive. He died in 2015.

THE RUSSIAN SOUL: Selections from A Writer's Diary by Fyodor Dostoevsky

Introduced by Rosamund Bartlett

Dostoevsky's immediate impulse for embarking on A Writer's Diary in 1873 was a desire to come into closer contact with his readers. Published in monthly instalments, it became a unique journalistic enterprise incorporating art and politics, intimate confession, criticism and short stories. Far more popular than his novels ever were, The Diary was Dostoevsky's favourite literary work and stands revealed as the work of a writer-activist and blogger avant la lettre, who sought to transform Russian society and humankind itself.

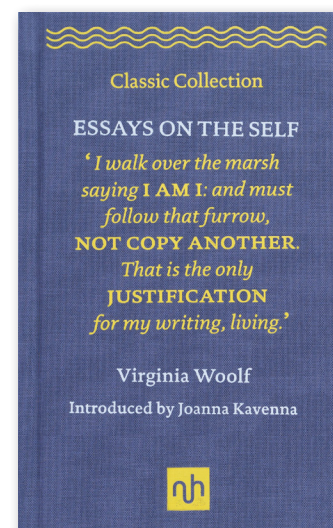

Rosamund Bartlett is a distinguished scholar and writer and has authored biographies of Tolstoy and Chekhov, as well as on Wagner and Shostakovich. Her new translation of Anna Karenina was published in 2014, and follows two anthologies of Chekhov stories and a volume of his letters.

ESSAYS ON THE SELF: Virginia Woolf

Introduced by Joanna Kavenna

Throughout these 13 essays, Woolf celebrates the urgency of the present, which, she argues, must always take precedence over the past. Woolf discusses the rights of women, the revolutions of modernity, the future of the novel. She is eloquent on social inequality and the agony of war. She fights with demons, mocks those who mock her, and generally prevails.

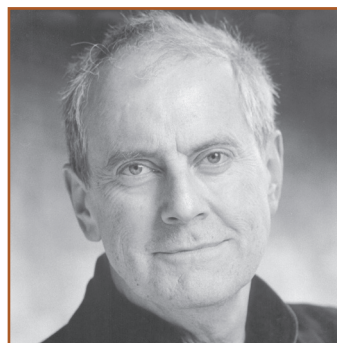

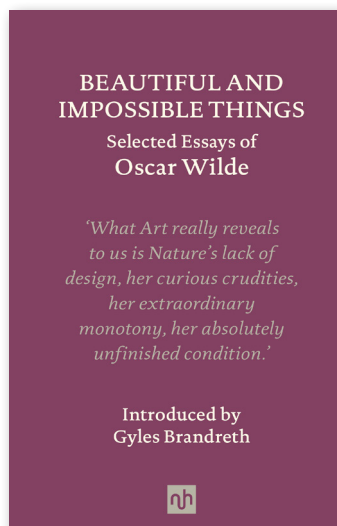

Joanna Kavenna is a British novelist, essayist and travel writer. Her works include The Ice Museum, Inglorious, A Field Guide to Reality and Zed. Her short stories and essays have appeared in the New Yorker, the London Review of Books, Arc, the Guardian and the New York Times. She was named as one of the Telegraph's Best Writers under 40 in 2010.

BEAUTIFUL AND IMPOSSIBLE THINGS: Selected Essays of Oscar Wilde

Introduced by Gyles Brandreth

This new selection of essays by Oscar Wilde (1854-1900) demonstrates the varied aspects of his genius. Compiled from his lecture tours, newspaper articles, essays and epigrams, these writings show that beneath the trademark wit and love of paradox, Oscar Wilde was an original, skilled and remarkably modern writer.

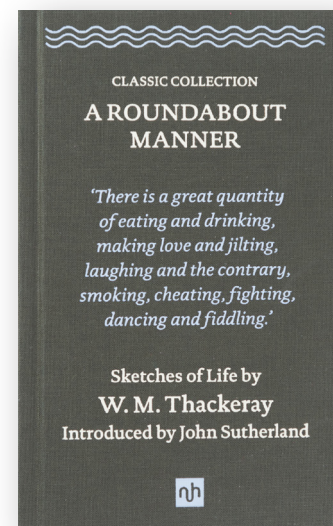

Gyles Brandreth is a writer, broadcaster, actor, former MP and Government Whip. A reporter on the One Show on BBC 1 and a regular on Radio 4's Just a Minute, his many books include The Oscar Wilde Mysteries (published in 22 countries) and the No 1 best-seller The 7 Secrets of Happiness, as well as two volumes of political diaries. He is patron of the Oscar Wilde Society.

A ROUNDABOUT MANNER: Sketches of Life by W.M. Thackeray

Introduced by John Sutherland

William Makepeace Thackeray has always been an author for those with discriminating literary palettes. Few would deny that he is the finest literary stylist of his time. Thackeray was at his most Thackerayan in what he called 'small beer chronicles': the little things in life. His style reached its highest pitch in essays, his cutting wit in journalism.

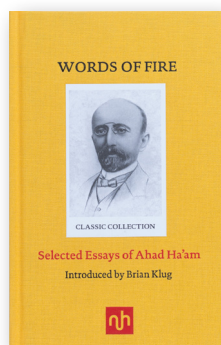

This is the first 'sampler' which covers all of Thackeray's versatile genius: his cartoons, his journalism, his carefully restrained sentimentality, his cutting satire, his essayism and what one could grandly call the Thackerayan world view - summed up in the foreword and afterword of his masterpiece, Vanity Fair.

John Sutherland is a British academic, newspaper columnist and author. He is the Lord Northcliffe Professor Emeritus at University College London. Professor Sutherland has written voluminously on Thackeray for fifty years.

WORDS OF FIRE: Selected Essays of Ahad Ha'am
Introduced by Brian Klug

Ahad Ha'am is mainly remembered as the 'father of cultural Zionism'. But there was much more to the man and his thought. These essays show him to have been a brilliant exponent of the art of the essayist, a major literary figure and an original thinker. His ideas have a direct relevance today, both for confronting the future of Israel and Palestine and for thinking about cultural pluralism in a democratic society.

ALL THAT IS WORTH REMEMBERING: William Hazlitt
Introduced by Duncan Wu

William Hazlitt was one of the greatest of essayists. He was a free-thinker, a non-conformist and a passionate advocate for anti-establishment causes at a time when to hold those views was dangerous. This collection brings together some of his most original essays: on liberty, the character of our leaders, corruption, factionalism, self-interest, and human nature.

DRAWN FROM LIFE: Selected Essays of Michel de Montaigne
Introduced by Tim Parks

A new selection of Montaigne's essays that explore themes of fear, courage, mortality and personal freedom. In his vivid introduction, Tim Parks sheds new light on this enduringly popular figure whose essays are 'so engaging, so seductive, that many readers will revel in their intimacy and irreverence without entirely grasping the challenge they throw down to us.'

GRUMBLING AT LARGE: Selected essays of J.B. Priestley
Introduced by Valerie Grove

A delightful and unusual selection of Priestley's essays, drawing on five decades of his writing. Witty, controversial and sometimes grumpy, Priestley's essays reveal the many faces of one of Britain's most distinguished writers.
